The KBAG_A site (the Fyfield site) development of 600 houses, as promoted by Lioncourt, does not appear to be commercially viable and therefore LPP2 is UNSOUND and NOT EFFECTIVE in this instance.

See further comment on page 4 below.

Question 5

The KBAG_A site (the Fyfield site) development, as promoted by Lioncourt, does not appear to be commercially viable and therefore LPP2 is UNSOUND and NOT EFFECTIVE in this instance.

The landowner will extract the highest price for the land (85 acres). The average price of farmland approved for development anywhere south of Birmingham is now £1 million per acre according to Farmers Weekly. The cost of land per plot will therefore be c.£142,000 (given 600 plots in total).

Judging by Lioncourt public statements, the build will comprise predominantly 3-bed homes. The build cost of a good quality 3-bed home is c.£150,000. The cost of the proposed infrastructure will be c.£15 million (2 roundabouts @ £3.5m; access road £2m; school £3.5m; retail area £3.5m; playground and field £0.5m+). The average cost of infrastructure per house is therefore £25,000.

Planning policy indicates that affordable social housing should comprise 33% of the build therefore 200 homes will be sold at cost. A subsidy of c.£50,000 will need to be added to the cost of each market value house to pay for the social housing element. The total cost of a market value house is therefore likely to be £367,000. The current market price of a 3-bed house (100m²) in the area is £350,000, i.e. less than the expected cost without including the developer's profit margin (target 20%; min. 17.5%).

The proposed development is not viable without major changes to the scheme such as:

- Increasing the number of dwellings — Indeed, Lioncourt are now indicating 700 homes in anticipation of this problem on their website. The outcome of this would be to reduce the amount of amenity space and increase the traffic impact on the A420.
- Cutting the infrastructure — If anything, further infrastructure needs to be added such as a health centre and it's own village hall, given the distance to the existing one in Southmoor..
- Downgrading the quality and size of homes. The outcome of this would potentially be at odds with the deliverability of high quality homes as espoused in Core Policies 37 and 38.
- Reducing the social housing element or eliminating it altogether as has happened elsewhere.
- Eliminating one or both roundabouts and relying on access via the old Oxford Road (thus abandoning the notion of a 'relief road').
- St John's College selling the land at a discounted price.

This development, as promoted by Lioncourt, is not viable. LPP2 is therefore, in regard to this site, not positively prepared, unjustified (the evidence suggests a developer cannot deliver the scheme profitably) and therefore not effective. To continue including the site in LPP2 without major modifications to reflect commercial considerations is disingenuous and highly misleading.

CONCLUSION: CORRECTION REQUIRED TO POLICY 4a

Delete the Fyfield site from the additional allocations in Policy 4a and from Policy 8a.
