Why Didcot needs a Delivery Plan

The Didcot Garden Town Delivery Plan sets out how we are going to manage this growth effectively and efficiently and use our garden town status to secure new funding from government.

Any additional development proposed in the delivery plan will require feasibility studies and or planning permission before they can go ahead. Residents will therefore be able to have a further say when individual planning applications are brought forward for future consideration.

About Didcot

Didcot is an exciting place to be and the next 20 years will see 20,000 new jobs and 16,000 new homes created in the area. Didcot was granted Garden Town status by the government in 2015 to help plan for this growth and is one only ten garden towns in the United Kingdom that receive significant investment from the government for this purpose.

What’s already planned for in and around Didcot?

Land has been bought by developers and planning permission has already been granted to build 10,000 new houses on land around Didcot. And according to the current Local Plan a further 6,000 plus new homes could also be built over the next 15 years. This means the local district, town and parish councils and Oxfordshire County Council need to plan for and find funding for things such as new roads, schools, shops, leisure facilities and more green spaces to support the additional homes – ensuring the residents of Didcot can enjoy a great quality of life for years to come.
