The primary areas identified for job growth are Didcot, Harwell and Milton Park. However, the sites identified for new housing do not align to the job growth areas. The proposal to build 800+ dwellings in North Abingdon (and the further development in North West Abingdon) are several miles away from these areas and seem likely to increase the congestion on the A34 at peak periods as well as significantly increasing traffic on Boulter Drive. This is likely to lead to increased, and increased unpredictability in journey times as well as increased emission and noise pollution in the Dunmore Road area. This appears inconsistent with the objective of minimising commuting. Would it not be more sustainable to build the housing close to where the jobs are projected to become available?
